Urgent plea for help after man's shock death abroad

A DESPERATE fundraising appeal has been launched after a young Barry man unexpectedly died in Cambodia.

Lewis Davies, who had been working in Cambodia teaching English, had a seizure while sleeping in bed and his heart stopped. After half-an-hour of CPR, he died.

His family have launched an online fundraising page with a target of £10,000 to pay to have Mr Davies' body flown back to the UK.

Unfortunately at the time of his death, the 26-year-old's insurance had lapsed.

A family spokesman said: "We are raising money to help bring Lewis Davies home for a proper burial.

"It is going to cost £10,000 to bring his body home and put him to rest. Please if you could spare any money to help bring Lewis back, we would be forever grateful.

"We are in desperate need as if his body is in Cambodia for too long he will be cremated there without any of his family.

"We are all in shock and absolutely heartbroken to have lost our kind, lovely Lewis."

Vale MP Alun Cairns has been supporting the family in their dealings with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and is urging people to support the fundraising campaign.

He said: "I'm incredibly sad to hear of Lewis' unexpected passing. Lewis was a passionate community campaigner, involved with many charities and organisations including Bro Radio and Atal y Fro. He also stood in Vale Council elections in Cadoc ward. This is a tragic story. At this time of year when family is so important, his mother Joanne has received the worst of news and reuniting Lewis and his family locally would mean so much. I would encourage everyone to show their support. Please donate what you can."

So far just under £1,500 has been raised online.

To donate visit www.gofundme.com/f/mttr83-get-lewis-home.

Trio win national gong for coding

THREE Ysgol Gymraeg Bro Morgannwg pupils have won a national prize for their coding skills.

The year 9 pupils entered a competition earlier this year which required them to code their own interactive game app for mobile phones. The competition was held by the DVLA and the team reached the final. Gwennan Thomas, Seren Morris and Mari Jeffery were awarded the first prize and £2,000 towards ICT in the school. The team of three girls depended on the public vote on Tuesday as the lines opened for two hours only.

The team has created an interactive game app for mobile phones about Hinnie, a famous scientist and her team, who have been kidnapped.

They spent many hours working as a team, often using video links and conferencing software to create this program. They showed excellent programming and design skills, teamwork and dedication and have created an innovative truly mobile game that gets pupils thinking and moving indoors and out.

Dilwyn Owen, ICT teacher at Ysgol Gymraeg Bro Morgannwg said: "We are very proud of their achievement and it is fantastic to see coding skills taught in the lesson being applied to create a very original app." Mr Owen runs the school's coding club.

We have lost a top Secretary of State for Wales

IN an era when 'fake news' and unsubstantiated allegations are common media outlets who like to be perceived as purveyors of accurate political views and opinions I find it amazing that the self proclaimed newspaper of Wales and the two major Welsh broadcasters headlined the claim that the then Secretary of State for Wales, Alun Cairns, was familiar with the details of the court case in which Ross England was involved.

Mr Cairns' response to the allegation was immediate, he denied such knowledge, resigned as Secretary of State for Wales, subjected himself to a full Ministerial inquiry and asked for the matter to rest until the result of that enquiry was published.

He then asked to be allowed to canvass in his constituency without the matter becoming a constant topic of questioning.

Despite this he was hounded by the media at every opportunity, which must have caused him and his family a great deal of distress.

December has proved to be a very successful month for Mr Cairns.

He retained his seat as Member of Parliament for the Vale of Glamorgan with an increased majority, the Conservatives made huge inroads in the Principality and won a decisive majority in Westminster.

In addition of course the enquiry has confirmed his initial statement that he was not aware of the details of the said court case.

Now is the time for a full and unconditional apology from those media outlets whose 'fake news' reporting misled the Welsh public and resulted in us losing a top quality Secretary of State for Wales.

It would be appropriate if those involved offered their resignations and were the subject of an inquiry in order to identify the reasons why they acted as they did but I am not holding my breath that any action will be taken despite their actions.

Support line to hit quarter of a million

AS 2019 draws to a close, I am writing to you to let your readers know that calls to the Macmillan Support Line will hit almost a quarter of a million this year.

Staff on our free support line, which is open 365 days a year, have already received more than 240,000 enquiries in 2019 and supported more than 65,000 people – 7% more people than in 2018 and 14% more than the year before that.

Last year alone, we supported almost 100 people over the 'three days of Christmas' (Christmas Eve, Christmas Day and Boxing Day).

The number one reason callers contacted Macmillan was for emotional support, with 20% more people calling with issues such as anxiety, fear and depression than the previous year.

Staff also point to callers needing support as they experience so called "scanxiety" - anxiety related to waiting for results and treatment.

Thanks to generous donations from the public, Macmillan expanded our support line opening hours last year to meet growing demand.

Staff taking calls say many people living with cancer ring up in distress having not had the time they needed to process information when speaking with their healthcare team.

For support, advice or just a chat, I want to let your readers know they can call our support line free on 0808 808 0000.

Macmillan does all it can to help people living with cancer live their lives as fully as they can such as running our support line, but we cannot do it alone.

To do something amazing today and support Macmillan, visit macmillan.org.uk/getinvolved.

Election musings

I hope that Alun Cairns has learned a valuable lesson about loyalty towards Boris Johnson in his decision to step down from the cabinet, viz.: Boris Johnson is quite prepared to throw anyone under the bus to advance his ambition.

Some may say that a cardboard cut-out with a blue rosette would have been voted for by some people in this electorate.

Spotted on Facebook. Somehow seems appropriate.:-

"Dear Tory Voter. What we need you to do now. So well done, first of all. You listened to the arguments, the same ones I listened to. You heard all the same information I did.

You listened to the same debates that I did, but you, along with 43.6% of the country, voted Conservative. And you won. I take that – it was a democratic process and sometimes in the democratic process you lose.

Firstly, don't stop with your political passion and activism, because we need you now. We need you to be active, we need you to keep talking to the people who you trusted with this vote, and we need you to hold their feet to the fire.

There will be another General election in 2024, if not before, and by then, you will know whether their promises are good or not. So make it clear to them that you are watching to see if they were telling the truth or not.

If you voted Tory to 'get Brexit done' by the end of 2020, make sure we are fully out by the end of 2020, if we are still bogged down in complex trade discussions after 2020 then vote them out, because they lied to you.

If you voted Tory to protect the NHS, then make sure it is not privatised, or any part of it sold off as part of a trade deal, if it is, then vote them out, because they lied to you.

If you voted Tory because of the promise of 50,000 'extra' nurses, and 20,000 'extra' police, make sure they are recruited and trained. If they're not, then vote them out, because they lied to you.

If you voted Tory because you were reassured the economy would be as good as or better than it is now and it turns out that the pound doesn't recover to pre-referendum levels, more businesses have left and people have lost their jobs, then vote them out, because they lied to you.

If you voted Tory because of all the immigration, and it turns out that the 'Australian style points based system' that they implement means immigration doesn't go down, then vote them out, because they lied to you.

If you find no action being taken on climate change, more people living in poverty, more usage of food banks, your rights taken away, then vote them out, because they lied to you.

So please, if you find that they lied to you, vote them out. And vote for people who will tell you uncomfortable, complicated truths, rather than easy, simple lies."

Retain our beauty spots

NOT wishing to inflict bah humbug on anyone at this time of year, I can't help but think our natural places of beauty need to be retained as such.

I am talking about the knap gardens and Porthkerry park in particular.

I am all for people expressing themselves in a tranquil setting, however when that setting becomes a danger to the wildlife these areas support I think it is time for a rethink.

Trees decorated with swathes of ribbon, plastic tokens tied on with string, baubles, trinkets and lights tied to branches and railings, they all represent something to someone, however after time and in bad weather they deteriorate, they either break off and fall into the water or end up on the grass which could cause unnecessary suffering to the wild birds whose diet is primarily the grass on which these decorations fall and become broken and trodden on.

I have disposed of items and ribbon into the bin and I now see baubles on the grass.

The items are meaningful to those who place them there but perhaps biodegradable natural materials are more suitable as would be regular removals of any decaying matter for the safety of all the beautiful wildlife that inhabit our natural parks we all wish to enjoy.

Another year over, yet another decline for nature!

AS another year ends and another one begins, we must all take a little time to look back and perhaps dare to look ahead.

For our precious remaining wildlife it's been yet another year of decline!

The numbers of Britain's species have more than halved since the 1970's, with one in ten species threatened with extinction from our shores.

The abundance of our wildlife has fallen dramatically.

Insects have been particularly badly hit...moths declining by 88 %, ground Beatles 72% and butterflies by a shocking 76%.

The State of Nature report, compiled by scientists from fifty conservation organisations discovered that the UK has lost significantly more biodiversity than the world average, listing us as one of the most nature depleted countries in the world!

As 2020 begins we can either choose to ignore this inconvenient truth or actually start doing something about it.

Business as usual is just not an option!

We all need to make a little space for Nature to thrive, whether in our gardens, our parks, our roadsides or even on our industrial estates.

Above all join a conservation group, it doesn't matter which one, we all need more help and support.

Only then can we hope to build a movement which can finally make that change that our wildlife is crying out for!

A case of sour grapes

READING the local news recently I noticed Madeleine Moon describe Bridgend being in a huge mess and having elected an inexperienced new Conservative MP Jamie Wallis.

As far I am aware Bridgend is controlled by a Labour Council .

Perhaps Bridgend needs experienced business people to run the Council.

With regards to having an inexperienced new MP, Madeleine Moon and Labour were quite willing to accept inexperienced MPs in Barnsley east, Bedford, and Blaydon in 2017.

Is it because they all had one thing in common, they were all trade unionists?

If she had listened to her constituents wishes in 2016 and not done everything in her power to thwart them, then maybe she would still be collecting her £70 thousand plus wages.

Having Jeremy Corbyn as a Labour leader and not being more vocal in her opposition to him didn't help either.

L Roberts, Brackla

Councillors should resign and fight by-elections

HAVING read both Andrew RT Davies' comments and the response by the three Cowbridge councillors I fail to see in which way his comments were 'misleading', as they claim.

The Vale Council's cabinet is proposing to merge Y Bont Faen Primary and Cowbridge Comprehensive schools which, in his capacity as an AM (not a councillor), he opposes and he therefore encourages them to take certain steps themselves.

The Cowbridge councillors refer to the proposed consultation that is to take place.

I trust that in due course more note will be taken of the result of that than the three Cowbridge members took of the results of the consultations on Llancarfan School, which they totally ignored, preferring to read out set 'questions' at cabinet meetings to ensure that the 'correct' answers were provided by officers.

Finally they refer to representing the views of their constituents.

Perhaps they should consider that in May 2017 their constituents voted overwhelmingly for Conservative councillors to enable a Conservative administration to replace one led by Labour, to see only two years later their councillors prop up another Labour-led administration that seems determined to destroy local schools.

If they truly want to represent the views of their constituents they should resign their seats and fight by-elections, but I doubt they will do so.

Ex-Welsh Secretary cleared of wrongdoing

LEFT: Former Secretary of State for Wales and Vale MP Alun Cairns.

FORMER Welsh Secretary Alun Cairns has been cleared of breaching the government's ministerial code over claims he knew an ex-aide collapsed a rape trial.

An inquiry found it "unlikely" Mr Cairns, who was re-elected as the Vale's MP last month, would not have been told anything about Ross England's role in the collapsed trial.

Sir Alex Allan, who carried out the investigation, said in his report: "I find it unlikely that Mr Cairns would not have been told something about Mr England's role when he was told about the collapse.

"But all involved state they had not informed Mr Cairns of Mr England's role, and there is no direct evidence to contradict this.

"On that basis, I do not find that the evidence upholds the allegations of a breach of the ministerial code."

Mr Cairns denied knowing Mr England had made claims about the rape victim's sexual history in an April 2018 trial.

But reporters at BBC Wales discovered Mr Cairns was emailed about the incident in August 2018 – four months before Mr England was selected to contest the Vale of Glamorgan seat in the assembly elections.

Mr Cairns, who was the cabinet's longest-serving minister having been appointed in 2016, previously said he only became aware of Mr England's role in the trial's collapse when the story broke in November 2019.

He quit his role as Boris Johnson's Secretary of State for Wales after the row broke out, just before the start of the general election campaign.

Mr Johnson has filled Mr Cairns' old job with Simon Hart, the MP for Carmarthenshire West and South Pembrokeshire.

Man facing murder charge appears in court

A 24-YEAR-OLD man has appeared in court charged with stabbing another man in front of shoppers in Barry town centre.

Jordan Brown, from Barry, is accused of murdering Jordan Davies, aged 23, in Holton Road at around 4pm on December 16.

Brown spoke only to confirm his name, address and nationality during a short hearing at Cardiff Magistrates' Court on December 18.

He was remanded in custody and is expected to appear in court again on February 14.

Mr Davies' family said in a statement: "Jordan was a loving son, brother and father of two young children. He was also a keen football player."

"Jordan will be greatly missed by everyone who knew and loved him.

"We ask that our privacy is now respected during what is an extremely difficult time."

Detectives are continuing to appeal to anyone with information to come forward. Information and digital footage can be submitted online via a public portal: mipp.police.uk/operation/62SWP19A99-PO1

South Wales Police can be contacted by calling 101, quoting occurrence 1900461821.

Man's body found in garden

POLICE are investigating after the body of a man was discovered in the garden of a property on Gladstone Road in Barry.

Officers were called to the scene at around 9.10am on December 28 after a passer-by made the discovery.

A section of Gladstone Road and Everard Street was closed off while forensic investigations were carried out.

The death is not believed to be suspicious.

Formal identification is yet to take place, but the relatives of the man have been informed.

Enquiries are ongoing and anyone with information should call police on 101 quoting 1900474504.

Great response to learning centre's Christmas appeal

STAFF and learners at Palmerston Community Learning Centre have been busy collecting supplies to be donated over Christmas.

A total of six boxes of food, festive fare and toiletries were taken to the Vale Foodbank.

They also raised an impressive £220 in donations, which was used to purchase toys for children in the Vale as part of the annual Big Wrap Toy Appeal.

The Big Wrap aims to provide gifts to children from birth to 19 years old who are at risk of receiving nothing or very little at Christmas.

Cabinet member for social care and health, Cllr Ben Gray said: "Sadly, many families and youngsters will go without this Christmas. In many cases, this will be a 'hidden' hunger or want, unbeknownst to those around them.

"We are incredibly lucky in the Vale to have such a generous, tight-knit and supportive community, who reach out to those in need. Thank you to all who got involved, your donations will be greatly appreciated."

NOW that the highly-anticipated Gavin & Stacey Christmas special has aired and left fans demanding answers after its cliff-hanger ending, the question on everyone's lips is what happens now?

Ruth Jones and James Corden, who write and star in the show, made thousands of fans' Christmases after announcing they were making a festive special nearly 10 years after the series ended.

And it was well worth the wait, with one of the show's leading actors branding the episode "the best one we have ever done".

Millions of people gathered in front of their TV screens on to find out what had happened to the Shipman and West families over the last decade.

The Billericay side of the family travelled to Barry to spend Christmas Day with Gavin, Stacey and their three kids, as well as uncle Bryn, Gwen, Jason and, of course Nessa.

But it was the show's final scenes that had viewers in hysterics and crying out for more.

Nessa, played by former Porthcawl Comprehensive student Ruth Jones, asked James Corden's character, Smithy, to marry her – and the closing credits rolled before we could find out his answer.

Will we ever find out what Smithy's answer was? Well, co-creator Ruth Jones teased that there could be another instalment of the show at some point in the future.

She told a group of journalists at the show's official press launch in London back in November that "it is not necessarily over."

Jones said that there was "room for it [the story] to move on."

She said: "Honestly, hand on heart, at the moment there is no plan. No sitting in a room mapping out another episode. But I think, obviously there is room for it to move on. All I will say is, who knows?"

Her and fellow writer James Corden – now a big hit in America – spent a week at his Los Angeles home putting pen to paper coming up with the Christmas special script.

Jones revealed: "It was a bit of a journey. There were some times during the week that we thought 'oh this isn't happening, let's not do it.'

But she admitted that she was "so proud and absolutely chuffed" with the final product.

She added: "It was just like getting a family back together. There was a great atmosphere."

Actors' thoughts on the special

All of the cast at November's press launch– apart from Ruth – watched the Christmas treat for the first time alongside journalists.

Fighting back the tears after watching the episode, Larry Lamb, who plays Gavin's dad Mick, said he was "extraordinarily overcome with emotion."

Alison Steadman, who plays Larry's on-screen wife Pam, admitted she had a "lump in my throat" watching it, with Rob Brydon, behind the character uncle Bryn, saying he was "thrilled."

Brydon added: "It's so lovely. It was just joyous and I am thrilled with what I have seen."

Mathew Horne, who plays titular character Gavin, told reporters: "I actually think that this is the best episode we have ever done. Sensational."

Remembering neighbour Doris

The cast paid tribute – both at the launch and in the episode – to the woman behind one of the show's much-loved characters, Doris who lived next door to Gwen.

Margaret John played the hilarious character throughout the show's three series, but in 2011 she died after a short battle with liver cancer.

Jones revealed her favourite episode was in series three when the clan spent the Bank Holiday on Barry Island beach because Margaret and Alison spent the whole day laughing.

She said: "Maggie was such a special woman and we wanted to pay homage to her in the best way possible. I hope Maggie is up there watching."

In the episode all of the characters raise a glass to Doris, apart from Nessa because she's annoyed Doris didn't leave her the house when she died.

Jones added: "She was such a special woman and incredibly talented actress. We wanted to raise a glass to her, but undercut it because at the end of the day Doris as a character was very rude and very upfront.

"I think Maggie would've appreciated that Nessa didn't raise a glass."

Cast have their say on the characters

TV personality Rylan Clark-Neal, who hosted the press launch, admitted he was really surprised when he met Alison Steadman because she was the complete opposite of her character Pam.

He said: "Everyone in the country knows a Pam. The weirdest thing about meeting you in real life and talking to you, and I know you're an actor, but you couldn't be anything further from Pam. It frightens me.'

Steadman explained: "It was the best fun to play Pam. I am so happy when I am her. It just feels right. I always feel happy.

"She is a lovely character to play."

Brydon, who admitted he never thought there would be another episode of Gavin & Stacey as it had ended on a high, said it was the "happiest job" he'd ever had.

Ruth said: "I absolutely adore Nessa. When I am playing her I just feel so brave. I find it liberating to play Nessa. She is a really lovely mum."

Getting everyone back together

So after several trips to Los Angeles to plan the storyline and write the script, the only thing left to do was get the cast on board.

Jones and Corden called the actors and gave them the fantastic news that Gavin & Stacey would be returning.

Although it wasn't as straightforward as that with Rob Wilfort, who plays Jason, Melanie Walters, who plays Gwen, and Joanna Page, behind Stacey, failing to pick up their calls.

Wilfort ignored the call as it was coming from America and thought it was a scam and Walters blanked the communication because she thought she was being trolled.

And Page was too busy with her children to pick up Jones' emails, texts, calls and social media messages.

Jones explained: "We had to find out if everyone was available. We had a two-and-a-half week period where everyone could commit. That felt like a good luck omen that everyone was available."

She joked with her on-screen chums at the press launch: "Thank goodness you all said yes because I don't know what we would've done. We had already written the script."

Ex-Eastenders star Larry Lamb said: "My first thought was after having hung on to it for so many years, are they going to be able to carry it off? Because it can go so easily wrong in the same way you can hope it goes so wonderfully right."

Horne added: "My initial reaction was relief because I just thought thank God James has got some work. I had been so worried about him.

"And then the nerves kicked in, I was very anxious."

Viewers very nearly finally found out what happened on uncle Bryn and Jason's fishing trip with Brydon admitting that he has "never been told" what actually occurred on the outing.

But with another on-screen reunion not being ruled out, we may just find out what happened after all.

Young footballers' stylish new kit

BARRY'S Island Marine FC Under 6 team has received a sponsorship boost from Tarmac.

The company's Aberthaw cement plant has donated £500 as a result of one of its colleagues' volunteering efforts, which has now allowed the club to purchase a new kit for the team.

Tarmac Aberthaw's Kiln Coach, Dan Lane, volunteers as a coach for the young side, where he gives approximately 300 hours of his time, per year, to train the 18 budding footballers and manage the team during games.

Now sporting a new kit featuring the Tarmac logo, the under 6's are now facing their opposition in style.

Mr Lane said: "We have over 18 children playing for the under 6 side who come from across the Barry area. We've been running the junior teams for many years now and as you can imagine, many of the kits are passed down between the different age groups, meaning we have a mismatch of kits.

"I do give up my time to volunteer at the club but it's something that I enjoy immensely. To have further backing from my employer is great and I know how much this donation means to the team.

"Securing this donation has been wonderful and our players are thoroughly grateful. They're all looking forward to playing a game they love, in matching kit."

Graeme Bride, Manager at Aberthaw, said: "We are committed to supporting the volunteering efforts of our colleagues and are delighted to support Dan and Island Marine under 6's in their season.

"We wish them the best of luck in the future and look forward to following their success."

Mayor sleeps rough to help the homeless

VALE mayor Christine Cave spent a night sleeping outside under the stars at Cardiff Castle in a bid to help Wales' homeless people.

She was one of hundreds of people who took part in Llamau's Big Sleep Out event which raised more than £121,0000.

The Big Sleep Out saw more than 50,000 throughout the world take part to raise awareness of homelessness and drum up money to help rough sleepers.

Cllr Cave said: "I would like to extend a very special thanks to my fellow councillor and friend Rachel Nugent Finn for joining me for a truly extraordinary weekend to raise funds and awareness of what it's like to be homeless.

"As you will no doubt recall, we didn't have the best weather that weekend, but the very heavy rain and wind didn't deter us. Because of the extreme weather conditions, the stage at the Castle was blown over and part of the site flooded in the early hours of the morning.

"It certainly was an experience Rachel and I will never forget, and it really did highlight how difficult it is to live – even for one night – on the streets."

Climate change talks were a 'great disappointment'

THE next meeting of Barry & Vale Friends of the Earth will be at 7.30pm on Tuesday, January 7 in the Castle Hotel, Jewel Street, Barry.

A group spokesman said: "The Climate Change meetings in Madrid were a great disappointment.

"Despite a two day extension to the talks, little was agreed to stop the levels of CO2 rising and the big polluters continue to ignore the warnings.

"The death and destruction caused by Australia's forest fires has finally caused their Premier to return from his holiday and accept that mankind's use of fossil fuels is forcing global warming."

The spokesman added: "Locally, we are pleased to see Wales' largest coal-fired station close down but the Barry Dock Incinerator is firing-up, with smoke coming from the chimney, despite assurances of no atmospheric pollution.

"The company which provides the wood chip fuel now wishes to store the toxic incinerator ash on the dockside.

"No wonder Barry & Vale Friends of the Earth have received emails telling us that people are pulling out of new house purchases on the Waterfront.

"Let us hope that the Climate Change conference in Scotland in 2020 will achieve much more progress on a world wide agreement to switch to a green, sustainable future."

Get Back on Track for a New Start!

THE New Year is a good time to think about making some changes, improving your skills and qualifications, look for a new job or simply to improve your confidence and self-esteem.

The Vale Council Get Back on Track programme provides a wide variety of courses right across the Vale of Glamorgan in partnership with other organisations.

The courses are FREE to those eligible and a Free Crèche is provided at some centres.

Courses take place in Barry at both Palmerston Community Learning Centre and also at the Vale Learning Centre on the first floor of the Barry Library.

You can also learn at a whole range of venues across the Vale including Jobcentres and Libraries in Penarth and Llantwit and Community Centres in St Athan and Penarth

There are a wide range of Computer Skills workshops on offer with the chance to learn the basic ICT skills that you will need for the workplace and everyday life.

You can gain Agored, or the ECDL (Eurpoean Computer Driving License) qualifications at all levels. A new Saturday morning workshop starts in January which is ideal for anyone in part time employment who is unavailable during the week. For Jobseekers, Weekly Workclubs throughout the Vale are available to support your jobsearch and help with CVs and applications.

New courses in Health and Social care, Complementary Therapies and Childcare are an ideal stepping stone to Further Education and Training. Whether you are looking for employment or volunteering opportunities, there are a range of short courses in British Sign Language, Customer Service, First Aid and Health and Safety to give you the skills you need and enhance your CV .

A wide range of informal 'Get Back on Track' courses including Woodwork, Sugarcraft, Upcycling and Grow Your Own Vegetables, along with the Personal Development toolkit will help improve your confidence and self esteem and help you to consider your next step.

Adult Learners have said how courses have improved their confidence and health and wellbeing, and said they have made new friends, progressed to further courses and training and even helped them to gain employment.

For more information on new courses starting in your local area, pick up a course list from Vale of Glamorgan Council buildings or libraries or on line at www.gbotfree.org or call Palmerston centre 01446 733762

Marking Welsh Language Day

THE Vale of Glamorgan Council recently marked Welsh Language Rights Day with a series events at the Civic Offices.

It fell last Friday and represented an opportunity for public organisations to promote the rights Welsh speakers have to use the language. A choir sang Welsh hymns and carols, while Menter Bro Morgannwg and Dysgu Cymraeg y Fro were on hand to highlight opportunities to learn Welsh that are available. This was accompanied by a social media campaign that featured a video from the Council's Welsh-speaking director Rob Thomas.

Welsh Government has set out plans to reach a million Welsh speakers by 2050 as part of their Cymraeg 2050 initiative. "An increasing number of our residents are exercising their rights and requesting services through the medium of Welsh," said Mr Thomas. "As a result, I am witnessing an increase in the amount of Welsh being spoken within our offices. This is really positive and I welcome the opportunity to speak in Welsh in and around the office on a regular basis."

Good news for Waverley appeal

THE fundraising appeal to save paddle steamer Waverley has reached its £2.3 million target just seven months after it was announced that the famous steamship would not operate in 2019.

The Boiler Refit Appeal has attracted donations from over 8,000 individuals with support from the Paddle Steamer Preservation Society, several trusts and £1 million from the Scottish Government. Arnold Clark and the Swire Charitable Trust have both just confirmed their support taking the appeal to its target.

Eddie Hawthorne, group managing director for Arnold Clark, said: "I'm delighted that we're able to contribute £50,000 towards the restoration of the Waverley. Arnold Clark understands how significant the ship and its heritage is to Glasgow and we were keen to help towards the £2.3m fundraising target."

Waverley's new boilers are currently being built by Cochran's Ltd in Annan and are due to be completed in February. The work required on the ship will involve the removal of the iconic twin funnels to allow access to the boiler room.

Waverley excursions general manager, Paul Semple, said: "Thanks to the fantastic generosity of so many people and organisations we are now able to push 'full ahead' with Waverley's boiler refit which will be the most substantial refit since her rebuild was completed back in 2003.

"I would like to thank everyone who has donated to the appeal and supported our efforts to save the last seagoing paddle steamer in the world."

Waverley is owned by a registered charity and operated on a not-for-profit basis.

The recent appeal for cash has been the most successful in the ship's preservation career but ongoing support will be required given the annual cost of dry docking and refit.

Waverley will be moved from Glasgow to Greenock, under tow in January, where the major 'open-heart surgery' will take place. The full works are expected to take around four months to complete allowing Waverley to undertake her regular cruises around the west of Scotland, the Mersey, Bristol Channel, South Coast and the Thames in 2020.

Mr Semple added: "The trustees of the Waverley charity believe that ongoing charitable giving must now form a greater part of Waverley's long-term operational survival to ensure she remains in service. We are deeply grateful to all those who have helped this year, and in the months and years ahead, will ask those who care and who are able to help, to add Waverley to their permanent thoughts."

MEET YOUR ASSEMBLY MEMBER

HAPPY New Year with good prospects for our NHS and schools.

The festive season was full of concerts and events I attended which brought the Christmas message and spirit to many while raising funds for charities like RNLI, Tenovus, Barnardo's and the Trussell Trust.

During these events we heard about the great work being carried out by charities locally and nationally with a powerful reminder that many would be struggling at Christmas with Vale food banks operating from six centres across the county to meet this need. Food was donated by schools, churches, individuals and groups in the community.

We also heard from Susan Lloyd-Selby of the Trussell Trust at the Barry Male Voice Choir concert about the Big Wrap providing presents for children in need in our communities. This included the children of Syrian refugee families living in Barry and the Vale who enjoyed my annual Christmas party at the Memo with volunteers from across the Vale and the Mayor of Barry Town Council Margaret Wilkinson.

In the lead up to Christmas on December 16 the Welsh Government published its draft budget with a promise to prioritise the NHS and provide new investment to protect the future of our planet.

We are allocating an extra £421m in health and social care in 2020-21 bringing our total investment to £8.7bn.

On top of this we are increasing the specific grant for social care by £10m and uplifting funding for schools. Taken together this means the additional funding for local government including schools and social care totals over £220m in 2020-21.

Protecting the environment and responding to the Climate Change Emergency has been at the forefront of this budget. As well as protecting our funding for renewable energy, zero carbon technologies and access to nature the budget also includes a new £140m capital allocation to contribute to peatland restoration, an electric bus fleet, support for low emission refuse vehicles and a National Forest for Wales.

Our health service, social care, education and the environment are all top priorities for the people of Wales and I am proud of the local action and campaigns which highlight these issues.

Visiting the Sam Davies Ward at Barry Hospital gave me the opportunity to share the letter from the Community Health Council following the open meeting they held in the Vale on December 10.

The message to the Health Board was clear – the strength of public feeling for keeping the beds in the Sam Davies is based on the evidence of the excellent care provided by the staff especially at a time of winter pressures with flu and viruses taking their toll and I will be engaging every step of the way in any future consultations to make sure that message is heard.

Thank you to Barry Action for Nature and Plant Llantwit for planting trees and caring for the environment.

Thank you also to the campaign to save the Master Mariner pub in Gibbonsdown led by Abi Germon and local councillors. I was glad to play my part in chairing a meeting with all partners around the table when the pub was threatened with closure. Vale People First also played a part in this campaign. Finally, the 'go ahead' by the Vale Planning Committee for the new Castle Hotel community pub with investment in social housing across the town will help meet housing need in the community.

Many important things to take forward in 2020 with your support.

RNLI's helpful cash boost

RNLI's Bill and Avril Kitchen thank Barry Community Choir for the money raised by their concert raffle.

AT Barry Community Choir's 'Christmas Allsorts' concert, a raffle raised £137.35 for the local branch of the RNLI.

Receiving the cheque, Bill and Avril Kitchen from the RNLI visitor centre at Barry Island thanked the choir and summed up what such donations mean to the work of the lifeboats.

The concert was successful musically too, with a mix of pieces from the choir and soloists, followed by carol singing, and tea and festive food for all.

The choir were back on stage four days later, honoured to contribute to the wonderful 'Lovelight Concert' in Barry, held in aid of Tenovus.

The choir meets again on January 8 for their usual Wednesday rehearsal at Crossway Methodist Church, Crossways Street, Barry. Anyone who would like to try singing in a mixed voice choir would be warmly welcomed (further information at barrycommunitychoir.com).

Youngsters test out new £71,000 play area

CHILDREN in Dinas Powys can embark on outdoor adventures and let their imaginations run wild at a new play area on a housing development in the village.

Youngsters from the village's primary school officially opened the bespoke facility at The Woodlands estate on Cross Common Road recently.

The new play area was commissioned by Edenstone Homes and developed by Studio Response in collaboration with artist Tim Norris and Green Play project.

Sales director Adele McCoy said: "When we plan our developments we don't just think of the people who are buying our homes but everyone who will live there young and old. It's important that children have the opportunity to play outside and be active.

"It was great to have children from Dinas Powys Primary School officially open the play area. They certainly had lots of fun testing it out and planting around 60 bulbs on site."

Artist Tim Norris said: "Having visited the site I was inspired by the area. Dinas Powys translates into English as 'hill fort' and so the central feature of the play area is a fort."

Emma Price, from Studio Response, said: "The value of play for children's development is very important to us and our clients, and is of particular interest to a great number of artists and creative practitioners through public art projects. Children are instinctively creative and curious and we feel that The Woodlands enabled us to deliver a playground that allows them to explore nature, be active and create their own imaginary worlds."

Anya Hallett, from Green Play Project, added: "We were delighted to be asked to develop Tim's concept design into a new play space for Edenstone at Dinas Powys. Local families now have a wonderfully innovative play space.

"Combining community involvement and artistic creativity to deliver a public playground is an exciting new approach and we hope will lead to further collaborations. Public spaces should reflect the community they serve and be a source of pride."

The central feature is a hill fort, approached by steps or stepping logs that lead up to the timber structure. From here children can view the whole space. A wide double slide provides a route down or there's the option to cross the rope bridge to a second tower.

The amphitheatre provides a focus for community events and is a perfect sunny spot for parents and carers to sit and watch their children play.

A basket swing is an inclusive piece of equipment for every age and ability. The flat seat swing provides a different form of swinging.

A footpath wraps around an oak tree. The surfacing is a mixture of eco mulch, wood chip and stone dust giving a safe, all weather surface.

The £71,000 project was funded by Edenstone as part of its community contributions agreed during the planning process. The homebuilder is also investing more than £260,000 towards local education and £100,000 for sustainable transport.

Prolific burglars sent to prison for more than 35 years after 80 crimes

SEVEN people who have been convicted of being involved in more than 80 burglaries across South Wales – including in and around Bridgend – have been sentenced to more than 35 years in prison.

They were arrested as part of Operation Timmia, which was set up to target an increase in burglaries and car thefts.

Supt Cath Larkman said: "These burglaries had a significant impact on their victims many of whom were vulnerable. These burglars smashed their way into people's homes not caring if the occupants were home or not.

"No stone would be left unturned in investigating these offences and bringing the offenders to justice.

"We set up a dedicated operation team called Operation Timmia who relentlessly investigated these offences.

"While we recognise nothing can undo that these burglaries have taken place and the significant impact on these victims, we do hope the actions we took and today's sentences do provide some comfort to them that justice has been done."

The individual sentenced were:

* Kieran Joyce, 28, of Leicester, jailed for 10 years for conspiracy to commit burglary with intent to steal.

* William Joyce, 24, sent to prison for eight years for conspiracy to commit burglary with intent to steal.

* Patrick Joyce, 21, eight years behind bars for conspiracy to commit burglary with intent to steal.

* Daniel Joyce, 36, of Swansea Vale, jailed for six years for conspiracy to commit burglary with intent to steal.

* A 17 -year-old youth, who cannot be named for legal reasons, four years for conspiracy to commit burglary with intent to steal.

* Mary Connors, 23, of Cardiff, punished with 200 hours of community service for handling stolen goods.

*Christine Joyce, 59, of Swansea Vale, was also ordered to carry out 200 hours of community service for handling stolen goods.

Dog of the Week

ZEETA is a gorgeous two-year-old Cane Corso who is looking for a patient and understanding home and someone who will take the time to get to know her by visiting her a few times before adopting her.

She enjoys the company of other dogs and is looking for a home who already has a dog of similar size living there, as this will boost her confidence and help her adjust. She can live with children 14 years old and above.

Canine Carer Heather West, says: "Zeeta is an extremely affectionate and playful girl once she knows you and once she is settled in her new home, her true character will shine through."

New laws are needed to control fireworks, cllrs say

A LICENSING committee run by Bridgend, Cardiff and Vale of Glamorgan councils has said current laws do not offer people and animals enough protection from the frequent disturbance of fireworks.

The Shared Regulatory Services (SRS) joint committee says there are growing numbers of displays at celebratory events such as birthdays and weddings, as well as the numerous public and domestic displays on traditional and religious dates.

It wants local authorities to be empowered to limit the number of displays in their areas.

Speaking at a full Bridgend County Borough Council (BCBC) meeting on Wednesday, December 18, council leader Huw David said: "Several members have been in contact with cabinet members about the misuse of fireworks following emails from local residents.

"Our Shared Regulatory Service joint committee recently met and this was considered by members including our representatives Cllr Dhanisha Patel and Cllr David Lewis.

"A request will be made of UK Government to work with local authorities to identify a best practice approach to a revenue-neutral, mandatory permit system for fireworks displays, where local evidence is this is necessary to protect the community.

"The government, we hope, will work with a local authority to pilot the approach before the end of 2020, with a view to legislating to empower all local authorities to establish mandatory permit schemes where they deem it necessary."

New £34m school building gets green light

A £34.7million new build for Pencoedtre High School has been granted planning permission.

The project is part of the Vale Council and Welsh Government 21st Century Schools investment programme which will also deliver a new building for Whitmore High School and an expansion for Ysgol Gymraeg Bro Morgannwg, among other projects in the Vale.

Work is scheduled to start on site in spring 2020 and will include a three-storey modern school building, performance spaces and sporting facilities, including a four-court sports hall, all-weather hockey floodlit pitch, four games courts and grassed football and rugby pitches and.

Bouygues Construction UK have been appointed to build the new school on the existing site. The project timetable will see staff and pupils move in to the new building in October 2021 with the project completed in July 2022.

Trevor Baker, the Vale Council head of strategy, community learning and resources, said: "I'm delighted to see this project progressing to the next stage. This programme of work will see over £30m invested in developing a bespoke, new school building fit for 21st century learning which will benefit pupils, staff and the wider community."

Warning to farmers over illegal dumping of waste

FARMERS and land owners are being urged to be aware of requests to store baled waste on their land by Natural Resources Wales.

It follows a string of recent incidents where farmers across Wales have accepted waste for temporary storage.

The waste, which can be highly combustable, not only causes harm to the natural environment but can also affect people's livelihoods as land owners will be responsible for any costs or enforcement action taken by Natural Resources Wales (NRW).

Mark Oughton from NRW's Tackling Waste Crime team, said: "This is a growing problem across Wales driven by criminal gangs.

"Individuals acting alone, or operating under a company name, are offering land owners money to store large quantities of controlled waste, claiming it is a temporary measure before the waste is treated on site or sent for recycling.

"The majority of the incidents to date show the waste is not suitable for treatment."

The bales typically contain mixed partially shredded waste textiles including plastics and biodegradable materials.

Landowners should be aware that the storage of baled waste is tightly regulated, and they need an environmental permit to do so legally.

This is to make sure the material is managed and stored correctly to avoid pollution and fire risk.

Mr Oughton added: "We want to warn farmers and land owners that this illegal activity is on the rise to protect their interests and the environment.

"While it might seem tempting proposition to make some extra cash on land you are not using, you could find yourself facing enforcement action or significant clean-up costs if the waste is abandoned by the criminals.

"Anyone approached to store controlled waste or any other material on their land should report it immediately so we can investigate further."

If any land owner is asked to store waste on their land, they can report it to NRW on 0300 065 3000.

Ford donates engine to sea cadet group

Midshipman Biundo is pictured unpacking the newly-delivered engine with the unit's ME specialisation cadets.

THE Marine Engineering (ME) department of Penarth Sea Cadet Unit (TS Glamorgan) was given an early Christmas present: not by Santa, but by Ford Motor Co's Dagenham engine plant, which donated a new diesel engine to the unit.

After hearing of the unit's desire to improve the cadets' ME training within the three progression levels of the specialisation, with a greater level of hands-on experience, Mr Andy Price of the unit's management committee approached Ford to see if they could assist: and the company's response was to generously donate a fully-assembled engine, mounted on a carriage to enable ease of access to every part.

The unit's commanding officer, Midshipman Joshua Biundo (SCC) RNR, thanked Ford for their generosity and Mr Price for his endeavours in securing such a valuable asset.

He said: "This unexpected and extremely generous donation will improve the level of training within the ME specialisation immeasurably. It will allow my team of instructors to give the cadets the highest level of hands-on experience, thus enabling many more of them to gain this valuable qualification.

"If you or your child are interested in joining Penarth Sea Cadets, the unit is located in Stanwell Crescent and parades are held every Tuesday and Thursday from 6.30pm until 9pm (the unit is closed until January 7)."

Night rescue for RNLI near Rest Bay

VOLUNTEER RNLI crews from Porthcawl and Port Talbot launched the charity's lifeboats on service early on Wednesday morning to search for a fishing boat in the dark which had run into difficulty between Port Talbot and Ogmore By Sea.

Porthcawl's RNLI's volunteer crew were paged at 5.01am and joined the crew from Port Talbot RNLI and the Coastguard Teams from Porthcawl and Port Talbot in the search for a fishing boat and its crew.

A seven-metre fishing boat with two people and a dog on board had experienced engine difficulties and been swept ashore somewhere between Port Talbot and Ogmore-by-Sea.

The boat had no working VHF radio communications and the people onboard were cold and disoriented.

Carl Evans, helm of Porthcawl's RNLI's Atlantic 85 lifeboat said: "We were tasked by UK Coastguard to meet Port Talbot's D Class lifeboat off Rest Bay. As we arrived at Rest Bay the crew of the Port Talbot lifeboat spotted a flashing light on the shore in the cove area of Rest Bay near to Hutchwns Point.

"Further investigations, including illumination of the area using a white para flare, established the fishing vessel and the casualties were on the shore at this location."

Port Talbot's crew went ashore and provided care with the assistance of Porthcawl's D Class crew. The casualties were suffering from the effects of the cold and were assisted onto Locks Common and transferred to the care of the Coastguard teams,

With the incoming tide, the vessel was at risk of being smashed onto rocks so the Porthcawl crew towed it out from the beach and clear of the surf line.

Once in deeper water, the tow was transferred to Porthcawl's Atlantic 85 lifeboat which towed the vessel towards Porthcawl Marina. Porthcawl lifeboat stood off until 7.30am when it was possible to gain entry to the marina.

Chance for sporting talent to get financial help

BRIDGEND county borough's next generation of athletes can apply for support next year with the Halo Sport Foundation, part of the UK's largest independent athlete support programme.

The Halo Sport Foundation was launched several years ago by the social enterprise, Halo Leisure – the operator of public leisure facilities in Bridgend county borough.

It is also supported by Bridgend County Borough Council (BCBC) and athletes can benefit from financial support, memberships at Halo's sport and leisure facilities and more.

Simon Gwynne, Halo partnership manager, said: "As a not for profit organisation and registered charity whose primary aim is to provide the local community with active leisure facilities, we are delighted to be able to offer support through the Sport Foundation for another year.

"We see it as an opportunity to put something back into the community that has supported us so well."

The Sport Foundation is currently supporting 146 local sports people (able bodied and disabled) across a variety of sports. They use Halo's gyms, group exercise classes, pools, racket sports courts and indoor and outdoor sports pitches to keep fit and prepare for their next event.

Rising local sporting stars have until February 20 to apply for a share of the Sport Foundation support. Application forms and supporting information can be found at www.halosportfoundation.org.uk

Funeral service's appeal spreads Christmas good cheer

AS part of their continued support to the community, Lyndsay Ellis at The Vale Funeral Service wishes to thank everyone who has donated again this year to their Christmas Selection Box Apppeal.

More than 200 selection boxes were donated to support Vale Foodbank.

Principal Lyndsay Ellis and assistant Matthew Morrissey said: "Every year, the community never lets us down and we hope that the many selection boxes will bring happiness to those who receive them.

"Our thoughts and prayers are with everyone at this festive time, especially those who have lost and are reflecting on a loved one."

Lollipop man receives gift for all his hard work

THE guest of honour at the December meeting of the Dinas Powys Community Council was Dave Letts.

A spokesman explained: "Many will know that Dave ensured that pupils safely crossed roads near local schools. "He retired after 15 years of faithful service to the community."

Community Council Chairman John Fanshaw presented Dave with a bottle of his favourite whiskey, as a small token of appreciation.

Still no answers on future of nature reserve

VISITORS and residents living near a national nature reserve renowned for its sand dune habitat and rare species are now fearing the worst because there is no update from the landowners as to their plans for its future.

The Kenfig National Nature Reserve, which comprises 1,300 acres of managed coastal sand dunes and wetlands between Porthcawl and Port Talbot, is regarded as one of the finest examples of a sand dune habitat in Europe.

But on December 31, Bridgend County Borough Council's (BCBC) lease expired for the reserve.

The local authority cleared its items from the reserve centre with a final clean of the building which took place on December 20.

It is unclear what is happening to the reserve warden who has 20 years of experience.

And the owners, the Kenfig Corporation Trust, are failing to respond to requests for information.

Natural Resources Wales says it is in discussions to take on the long-term lease but nothing has been signed and while the organisation says it will "work closely" with the trust to manage the site's "conservation interests", people fear the reserve could be left vulnerable to vandalism and its unique status lost.

It comes after reports in recent days of fence lines being cut at the reserve and padlocks damaged, with permanent glue being put into keyholes.

Heather Protheroe, who lives near the reserve and set up a petition and a Facebook group to highlight the uncertain situation during the summer said: "We are exceedingly worried about the reserve.

"Fears are growing that the reserve will just be neglected, rubbish will build up, the centre could become subject to vandalism and wildlife conservation will be minimal.

"With the centre shut, there are now no facilities for the visiting public to use either.

"We are extremely disappointed that the reserve could lose its last remaining warden, Dave Carrington, who dedicated over 20 years of his life to the area, his expertise will be sorely missed.

"We are beyond exasperated with the trust, who continue to remain silent and indifferent to the community's voice."

She said she had written to the trust to request a meeting on behalf of the group to discuss how the local community might be able to help volunteer at the reserve, keeping the bins emptied and, in the long term, open the building as an information centre.

She said: "I had a response from them a couple of days later stating that 'present negotiations are moving very quickly' and they hoped to be in touch with me again the following week.

"That was two weeks ago and yet again, no communication."

Steve Parker, who has volunteered at the nature reserve since 2014, wrote to the trust to offer his help in cleaning the car park areas of litter until a new tenant was secured, something he regularly does now.

He said: "I am fully aware that within a short period of time following the departure of BCBC, litter will gather and bins will fill with no known plans to tackle that issue.

"I initially received no reply to my letter and on chasing it up I received an email saying they would get back to me.

"I have waited but to date there has been nothing further from them.

"Clearly time has gone on and despite promises from the trustees that matters are in hand no news as to the future has been forthcoming."

John Hogg, head of operations for South Wales central at NRW, said: "We're continuing to discuss the legal, financial and day to day operational detail of taking on a long term lease at the Kenfig National Nature Reserve in order to secure the long term future of the site.

"Following the ending of the current lease, we understand the site reverts to the Kenfig Corporation Trust and so all questions on what happens to the site from January 1 should be directed to them.

"We will of course continue to work closely with them to protect the conservation interests at the site."

BCBC says it is awaiting a timetable for the handover, adding it is in regular contact with NRW to discuss issues related to the ongoing running and management of the site.

BCBC has previously said it first began the process of trying to appoint a successor 10 years ago but after several years of not making any progress with the landowner, it stopped.

It says it cannot afford to continue to run the reserve and hoped a more specialised organisation would take over on a more commercial basis and make it pay for itself in a sustainable way.

NRW has advised people to report anything suspicious they witness at the reserve by calling NRW on 03000 65 3000, and call the police on 111.

The Kenfig Corporation Trust were approached for comment.

Awards dished out to dedicated cat-loving volunteers

CAT-LOVING volunteers have received awards from the mayor of Bridgend to recognise their dedication to a local charity.

Mayor Stuart Baldwin handed out certificates and statues to volunteers from Cats Protection's Bridgend Adoption Centre at a thank-you event.

Cllr Baldwin presented awards to over 20 volunteers. Each received a certificate and gift, with further awards being presented to those volunteers who have reached a milestone of one, five or 10 years.

There were also three volunteers who have collectively dedicated over 75 years to the charity.

Lisa Wilkins, who has been a cat care volunteer for 15 years, received a bronze cat duo while Jane and Trevor Graham, who have supported the Bridgend adoption centre since it opened in 1994, received a life-size black statue.

As part of the fundraising team Jane and Trevor attend events in and around Bridgend, raising funds and awareness of the charity's cat care work.

Jane said: "Our greatest enjoyment is raising money to help the cats. It can be hard work at times, but the friendship of the other volunteers and staff make it fun."

Mayor of Bridgend, Borough Councillor Stuart Baldwin with Jane, Trevor and Gareth Graham

Volunteering clearly runs in the family with Jane's mother Audrey also being involved for many years and their son Gareth later joining the team, helping with the cake stall and other fundraising events.

The event was arranged by volunteer team leader Karen Winfield, whose role is supported by players of People's Postcode Lottery who have raised £500 million for charities and good causes to-date.

"It was wonderful to celebrate the huge contribution that our volunteers provide to the centre," said Karen.

"No matter whether someone has been volunteering with us for years or has joined the team more recently, we couldn't be more grateful for their support. Their dedication never fails to amaze me and it makes a huge difference to lives of so many cats in need."

Anyone interested in volunteering for Cats Protection's Bridgend Adoption Centre should email Karen at Bridgend.Volunteering@Cats.org.uk

Authority to cut back on council tax rise after 'good news' settlement

COUNCIL tax in Bridgend county borough is now expected to be less than first forecast due to the local authority having received a higher settlement from Welsh Government.

Bridgend County Borough Council (BCBC) had been looking at increasing council tax by 6.5 per cent with proposed cuts to services involving CCTV, pest control, adult learning, homelessness, and recycling centres.

But council leader Huw David told cabinet members at a meeting on Tuesday, December 17, that the local authority was now looking at a smaller increase in council tax due to the settlement.

He said: "We've had some good news – we are going to have the biggest increase we have had in almost 12 years in our grant and I'm very grateful to Welsh Government, the new minister for local government, and the new finance minister for listening to local government and the case we made about the pressures we are facing in schools and social services in particular but across all services.

"They listened and they've acted.

"But we need to remember we've had 11 years of austerity – that will not change overnight with one good settlement.

"We will still have to make difficult decisions about our budget next year.

"The increase, however, will reduce the number of difficult decisions we have to make – obviously there's a lot of working to do in terms of forecasting and number crunching.

"I have been critical of Welsh Government in the past – I can be complimentary about them today because they have given us the increase we have asked for."

BCBC will receive an increase of 4.7% on last year's budget.

The cabinet member for communities, Cllr Richard Young, said he hoped some of the unpalatable decisions the council thought it would have to make would no longer have to be taken but added that the increased settlement would not reverse the effects of austerity.

He said: "I don't want people to run away with the idea that because we have one settlement the effects of austerity are going to be reversed.

"It's meant we have had to divest ourselves of certain facilities we have provided in the past – that's not going to be reversed."

Cllr David said the council would use the money to help meet budget pressures covering additional costs in education, social services, teachers' pay and pensions.

He said: "In 2019-20 it will cost BCBC almost £270.8m to provide a full range of public services for 142,000 residents.

"This increase to our core grant funding is most welcome and we will now be reviewing our original financial plans for 2020-21 to ensure that the money can be used as effectively and as efficiently as possible."

Expert advice could help avoid dispute

BRENDAN Sweeney, of David Prosser & Co Solicitors, writes:

It is estimated that 60 per cent of the UK population does not have a will. A will takes effect on your death, and is an instruction as to what is to happen to your estate.

Probate disputes and challenges to wills are becoming a growth area, which often leads to substantial costs.

We now live in a world where family relationships are often very complex, and expert advice regarding the drafting of a will is essential.

A professional advisor can also advise you in relation to inheritance tax, and how you plan to minimise potential liabilities to it.

It is important that people are fully aware of their duties and financial responsibilities when they make a will, to ensure that they comply with the technicalities that are required to have a valid will.

The cost of a professionally-drafted will, after taking advice, is considerably less than the costs that can be incurred if there is a dispute regarding your financial affairs after your death.

Substantial costs can also be saved by taking professional advice early, and putting in place powers of attorney – whereby you appoint trusted people to make decisions about your property, financial affairs and health and welfare, if you lose capacity.

The people appointed are made fully aware of their rights and responsibilities.

Young entrepreneur designed for fashion label success

A 21-year-old fashion graduate from Bridgend, who displayed her collection at London Fashion Week, has launched a clothing label aiming to make runway fashion accessible.

Laura-Shannon Harding has spent the last few months showing her clothing collection at fashion shows across the country and is now launching her own fashion label, Laura-Shannon.

She started the business with support from Big Ideas Wales, the youth entrepreneurship service in Wales.

Laura's collection is inspired by festival fashion using playful and colourful prints, embellishments and textures.

She said: "Festivals are a place where people can be free with what they wear, and I wanted to create a collection showing how far the boundaries can be pushed within festival culture; showing how free and accepting the atmosphere is."

After a busy few months, Laura has launched an online store commercialising her runway collection where she will sell clothing, acrylic jewellery and accessories.

She started her business with the help of Big Ideas Wales, part of Business Wales and funded by the European Regional Development Fund through the Welsh Government.

The service is aimed at anyone between the age of five and 25 who wants to develop a business idea, including students and graduates.

Laura said: "I created the collection as part of my final Leeds Arts University project and was selected to show the collection at Grad Fashion week. From this, the collection gained lots of attention, and I was invited to attend other fashion shows, including London at Fashion's Finest Closing Soiree and Doncaster."

Laura continued: "Attending fashion shows was amazing and made me more determined to keep creating collections for each season that are bold and avant-garde. Now, I'm commercialising the collections for my shop, Laura-Shannon, for people to buy and wear.

"In university you have all the facilities and tools you need. Now I've graduated, I have a domestic sewing machine, but to create the high-quality clothing I want to make, I need to get all the industrial machinery and that has been a challenge as they are so expensive."

Talking about Big Ideas Wales, Laura said: "I didn't think I would have much support starting my business, so when my mum mentioned the service to me I was completely amazed. After contacting them, I was put in touch with a business advisor, Miranda Thomas, who helped me develop a business plan, apply for funding for machinery and gave me a lot of help and advice.

"I think you need support when you are starting your own business, especially at a young age. There's so much I have yet to learn, making it invaluable support to have."

Miranda Thomas, Big Ideas Wales business advisor, said: "Laura is a very talented person who has already gained accolades in the fashion world. I cannot wait to see where the business goes as it is clear she has a bright future ahead."

In the future, Laura hopes to run pop-up Laura-Shannon shops in festivals around the world, allowing her to travel while developing the business.

She said: "I have been fortunate through attending different fashion shows to meet designers and have discussed the possibility of collaborations. Being able to work creatively with others in the fashion world would be such a dream, so I hope this will become a reality one day."

Economy Minister, Ken Skates said: "It's fantastic to see Laura turn her idea into a business with the support of Big Ideas Wales. In a short time, Laura has already accomplished so much, and with such determination and ongoing help from her advisor, it's clear she has a very exciting future ahead.

"The Welsh Government is absolutely committed to supporting entrepreneurs throughout Wales and this is another great example of the important steps we are taking to help them thrive."

- Dedicated showroom to include a new tile offering.

To find out more come and say hello to Liz Bathroom Showroom manager at 1-2 Ogmore Crescent, Bridgend. We are open Monday to Friday 8am – 5pm and Saturday from 8am – 12pm.

Top of the Lollipops! Crossing patrol winners revealed

A NUMBER of Vale of Glamorgan Council school crossing patrol officers were recognised at the Vale Road Safety Awards, held at The Dock Office in Barry.

The annual awards presentation, organised by the Vale Council's Road Safety Team as part of the Highway Development & Traffic group, recognises and rewards the contribution provided by those working on schools crossing patrols throughout the county.

The top award for School's Crossing Patrol of the Year was given to Nicholas Latham, a popular member of the St Helen's School community.

Mr Latham helps youngsters cross the busy stretch of road on Tynewydd Hill.

Other award winners included Ruth Grant, who won the prize for Barry, Julie Ellis, winner of the Llantwit Major and Rural Vale area award, and David Regan, who was the winner for Penarth, Sully and Dinas Powys.

Four long-serving officers who had retired or moved on during the year were thanked for their collective 63 years of service.

A special thank you was extended to the co-ordinators and volunteers of the Kerbcraft Child Pedestrian Training Scheme.

This year, 600 year two pupils have learnt to cross the road safely thanks to the initiative.

Vale of Glamorgan Council Deputy Leader and Cabinet Member for Education and Regeneration, Cllr Lis Burnett, thanked those in attendance.

She said: "The School Crossing Patrol Service and Kerbcraft Schemes were established in recognition of the need to keep children safe while out and about, on and near our busy roads. The success of any scheme relies upon the commitment and dedication of the individuals involved.

"Everyone here has played their part in contributing to road safety over the past year in the Vale."

President elect for Royal Welsh Show revealed

ON December 6 at the Royal Welsh Showground at Builth Wells, the RWAS Glamorgan advisory committee attended the annual council meeting where Mr Johnny Homfray FRAgS was proposed and presented in his official capacity as president elect for the Royal Welsh Show 2020.

Mr Homfray, of Penllyn Estate in Cowbridge, runs a mixed farming business; he has continually looked to diversify within agriculture and grasps the opportunity for new ideas and innovation. He has been CLA Wales chairman, a Bridgend Samaritans committee member, chair of HMP Parc Prison Monitoring Board Committee, Glamorgan Farmers' Club chair, CLA main board member and is currently a Governor of Cowbridge School and chair of their trust.

This will stand the committee in great stead for their future term as Feature County.

During the meeting Mr Jacob Anthony of Cwm Risca Farm, Bridgend was officially presented as designate ambassador elect for RWAS 2020. A fifth generation on his farm of sheep and beef comprising 1,000 breeding ewes and 300 head of cattle, he is currently a columnist for the Farmers Weekly, having been Farmers Weekly Young Farmer of the Year in 2018. Jacob is the previous Young Ambassador for the National Sheep Association and active member in his local YFC.

Mr William Hanks of Llantwit Major was re-elected as show director for the RWAS Winter Fair.

A spokesman said: "We look forward as we head into our feature year. There are lots of fun events organised to date, with more being added all the time."

Latest news from Fon-Mon Apiary

THE move to the new apiary site has been now completed.

Thanks to the days when wind, rain and low temperatures came to the fore these ideal conditions for moving were seized upon.

With the help of my former work colleagues Simon Graves and Alun Taylor all went very smoothly.

Along with the beehives items such as paving slabs (solid bases for the hives) spare stands and my work table were also moved.

This transfer of bees and associated apiary equipment was accomplished over a three week period.

In total six colonies were moved, but to start with I laid and levelled paving slabs and added stands in readiness for the first two colonies.

Why only two and not the whole lot in one go?

Well because the new site is very close to the old site and if mild weather had kicked in and the bees took the decision to venture out, the colonies that experienced the move would have picked up on familiar landmarks while they were out and about and followed these back to the location of their old home only to find nothing there; and the possibility of them using any of the hives on the original site is not a likely option and dead bees would be the end result.

Therefore the onus is on the beekeeper to get it right!

Fortunately the weather has been very obliging (for moving, that is) and now with all the colonies moved no bees are being observed at the old site even though there have been days when flying was very likely to be undertaken.

This is a huge relief but now of course winter is starting to bite and although each colony has a sufficiency of stores that should last them until next spring this in no way guarantees their survival until then.

During the winter months external checks will be the order of the day; should snow become part of the scene the hive entrances must be kept clear.

Opening hives in the winter months is not to be recommended!

With sufficient stores and weather-proof homes the bees are more than capable of handling things.

Very often the beekeeper is the biggest pest the bees have to handle.

Will I have six colonies bursting into life come spring?

Wish me well dear reader.

Harold Williams.

January's Sky Notes with Dave Powell

THE Milky Way arm of our Galaxy rises from the South-Eastern Horizon, reaching almost overhead before arcing down in the direction of the North-Western Horizon.

Overhead the bright constellation Perseus is worth locating. Its brightest star is Mirfak. This star belongs to a large open cluster as will be evident when you view through a pair of Binoculars. The group appears to be young, approx 55-65 million years old, and the cluster lies around 600 light years away (light travels 186.000 miles a second.) Mirfak is the brightest member and is thought to be at least 5.000 times as luminous as our Sun and have a diameter approx 45 times our Sun. I think this area of sky is impressive but, we must now gaze to the South-Eastern Horizon in order to locate this month's stand-out constellation, Orion. First look just above the roof-tops and one star will be noticeable. It is possible you may think it is flashing different colours, although this phenomenon is caused by starlight penetrating our polluted atmosphere. Sirius, the brightest star in the northern hemisphere will be easy to locate. It is the brightest star in a constellation known as Canis Major. It appears bright because it is relatively close to us being just 8 light years away. Compare this figure with Mirfak.

Above this constellation is mighty Orion. This constellation looks something like what it is supposed to look like, a hunter. The main outline stars are all bright and visible to the naked eye. Look for three stars in a line, this represents the hunter's belt, now look above and locate two bright stars, the left star is decidedly Orange. This represents his shoulders. Below the belt will be two stars, the one on the right will be brighter than the one on the left. This represents his feet. Being a hunter, naturally his belt holds a sword, it is visible without optical aid, although Binoculars will give a better view. Just cast your gaze a little way below the three belt stars and you should have little trouble finding the Orion Nebula, a stellar birthplace.

I said Sirius is the brightest star in the sky but during the month watch the South-Western sk. Low down to begin with just above the rooftops will be something even brighter. The planet Venus, puts on a good show for us this winter.

If you can stand the cold, then in the early hours of the 4th the Quadrantid Meteor shower is due. Locate Ursa Major, above the North-Eastern Horizon, and turn your back to this constellation, sit down in a deck chair, wrap up warm, and just watch the "shooting-stars".

Do keep an eye on our website http://www.barryastronomical.wordpress.com for details of our meetings, and if I can be of help please do contact me.

Out & About with The GEM

Misty walk around Cardiff Bay for ramblers

AS part of the Festival of Winter Walks a group of 16 Penarth and District Ramblers and Biddy the dog joined Ann at Penarth Leisure Centre to enjoy the annual post-Christmas stroll around Cardiff Bay.

At Pont y Werin, or the People's Bridge, they looked at the metallic see-through sculptures on both sides of the bridge featuring among others Dame Tanni Grey Thompson, Nicole Cooke and Jason Stone.

Following Watkiss Way past the white water rapids and a very slippery section of boardwalk to pass tall apartment blocks, they circumnavigated Cardiff Bay where the Clarence Road Bridge brought them safely across the River Taff.

Making their way to the old Hamadryad Hospital they had a quick peep at the mural in its porch depicting the old Hamadryad, a naval vessel that was used as a hospital ship in order to prevent infectious diseases such as typhoid and cholera brought in by seamen spreading through Cardiff.

When the vessel deteriorated, a permanent hospital was built which opened on June 29, 1905, and it continued as a working hospital until 2002.

Passing below the A4232 again and making their way through the wetlands developed to compensate for the loss of the mud flats when the bay was created, more slippery boardwalk brought them to Mount Stewart Square.

The group split up for morning break before re-grouping on the steps of the glass fronted Senedd, next to the stunning red terracotta Pierhead Building.

Then on past the five timber structures in the Bay that were connected by walkways where ships were moored for repair, the white painted Norwegian Church and the Scott Memorial and along Porth Teigr onto the open pathway towards the white sails.

Gazing across the Bay to the mist-covered St David's Hotel and a number of sail boats moving slowly as there was no breeze, they tramped across the Cardiff Barrage towards the stately old Custom House. They crossed the lock gates with boats all safely moored in the Penarth Marina and back along John Batchelor Way to Marconi Avenue and on past the Oyster Catcher for the short climb to Cogan Station and a return to their start.

On January 7, the Shortish Strides walk will leave Llantwit Major Railway Station car park at 10am for a five-mile moderate walk taking in fields, coastal path and Tresilian Bay and cave; call Joy on 01446 737131.

On January 8, the 10-mile easy annual tramp for lunch halfway round at the Blue Anchor in East Aberthaw will leave the Viaduct car park, Porthkerry Country Park at 9.30am; call William on 07528 701 952.

Wear suitable clothing, preferably boots and carry waterproofs, food and drinks. Some degree of fitness is required and if you are in any doubt, then please contact the leader for advice. For up to date information log onto www.penarthramblers.wordpress.com or follow on Facebook. Programmes and membership advice can be obtained from Pam on 029 2025 5102.

What's on and where?

Penarth Aviation Society

ON Friday, January 3 the Penarth Aviation Society will meet in the Penarth Conservative Club at 8pm.

We welcome local historian Alan Thorne back as guest speaker: last time Alan spoke to us on the history of airfields in the Penarth and Cardiff area. This time he is casting his net over all of south Wales to tell us about the airfields in the area and the part they played in both World Wars.

Why not join the Society? We meet on the first Friday of the month at the Penarth Conservative Club. Visitors and potential members are welcome to attend, for a small donation, to sample our hospitality.

Further information may be found on www.penarthaviationsociety.co.uk, www.facebook.com/penarthaviation-society.co.uk and from our secretary Martin Parry (029)21 254776.

Ystradowen Community Cinema

THIS month's showing will be The Current War - the dramatic race to light up America and power the world.

Screened at the village hall, Ystradowen at 7.30pm on Wednesday, January 8. Tickets from Tudor Garage, Ystradowen.

The Big Volunteering Fair 2020

ON Thursday, January 23 Glamorgan Voluntary Services (GVS) will host the Big Volunteering Fair for charities and community groups to showcase their activities and recruit volunteers.

The Fair is from 10am – 2pm at Memo Arts Centre, Barry CF62 8NA and is an opportunity for organisations to talk to people of all ages who express an interest in volunteering.

Bookings on a first come, first served basis and places are now filling up. To book a place, complete a form at www.gvs.wales/news/2019/10/big-volfayre20 or contact GVS on: 01446 741706, volunteering@gvs.wales.

Toy and train sale returns to Penarth

THE Cardiff Toy and Train Sale arrives at Penarth Leisure Centre at Cogan, between 10.30am and 3pm on Saturday, January 4 and collectors can rest assured that a further three dates at this venue are also booked for later in the year.

Organiser Chris Dyer said: "Our venue at Cogan is ideal, being large, easily accessed from all areas and most importantly, has Cogan Railway Station virtually next door.

"We now offer in excess of 130 tables, and these are operated by more than 50 traders from all over the UK.

"The Cardiff show is now firmly established on the national scene and traders travel from as far away as the north-east of England, East Anglia and Cornwall."

"Traders will be buying as well as selling and exchanging, and will also happily offer free valuations on a wide range of items. As always, refreshments will be available."

For more information, telephone 01643 702757, 07966 694579, or go to www.chrisdyerfairs.co.uk

Police officers and staff recognised in New Year's Honours list

OFFICERS and staff from South Wales Police have been recognised in the Queen's New Year Honours.

Retiring Deputy Chief Constable Richard Lewis and Police Constable Bharat Narbad have been awarded the Queen's Police Medal (QPM), with Detective Constable Graham Budd receiving an MBE and Debbie Farrar, a Protecting Vulnerable People investigator, a BEM.

Richard Lewis, who marked his last day in the job after 32 years in November, said: "I was totally taken aback when the letter arrived. I am absolutely delighted and feel incredibly lucky to have received it at the end of my career.

"But this is for all the people I have worked with over the years and throughout my policing career. It's a great honour for me and my family – and I know my father, in particular, will be chuffed."

PC Baz Narbad, from the police's BAME recruitment team and the chairman of the South Wales Police Black Police Association, said: "It came totally out of the blue – the letter was a massive surprise but I was very proud as well. I love the work I am able to do in the community and for our staff association. I don't do it for recognition but I am really honoured, and I just hope I can continue to do what I can to make South Wales Police more representative of our communities."

DC Graham Budd, who has been honoured for services to community policing in Cardiff, said: "I feel this is not so much a recognition of myself as of everyone I've worked with." Graham, who was stabbed during a drugs raid in 2017, added: "What happened to me could have happened to anyone. We are a team, and this recognition is as much theirs as it is mine."

Debbie Farrar, an investigator in our Protecting Vulnerable People unit who has been recognised for services to policing, said: "For me, this is recognition of what we do as a team – it's for everyone involved with vulnerable people, but also including those vulnerable people themselves, whose bravery and courage is inspirational.

"I am only a small part of the bigger team, and this is a reflection of a wider collaborative effort."

Responding to the New Year Honours announcement, Chief Constable Matt Jukes said: "It's a huge source of pride to see four of my colleagues from South Wales Police recognised in this year's New Year Honours list. They have each given long and dedicated service to our communities but more than that, they have each shown tremendous leadership in keeping our communities safe and ensuring our organisation has continued to develop to face today's challenges."

Speaking about the individual recipients, Mr Jukes added: "On a personal note, I am delighted that Richard's contribution to the force and our communities has been recognised. He has a passion for the place and its people, only matched by his enthusiasm for technology. His work has ensured South Wales Police has remained at the cutting-edge of police technology and the new kit in the hands of officers and staff today is testament to the spirit of innovation that he has fostered. This leadership has gone beyond our borders and indeed, beyond the hi-tech with leadership across Wales on our work with young people in schools and communities.

"Bharat, known to everyone as Baz, has been a champion for our diverse communities as chairman of the South Wales Black Police Association and a member of a team dedicated to developing a workforce that is more representative of our communities. He has been an ambassador for the force in all that he's done and has also ensured that Black and Asian staff and officers are represented and supported throughout their service. Baz is a familiar figure in communities across south Wales and his contribution has been key in the progress we are making to better representing those communities as a force.

"DC Graham Budd has been part of tackling the terrible effects of drugs and organised crime in our communities for many years. As an expert witness and an experienced investigator, he has remained in the thick of that work across his long service. His courage to do this saw him stabbed in a terrible attack while undertaking a drugs raid and it is testament to Graham that after recovering, he was back, doing the work he loves. I now wish him the very best for his well-deserved retirement.

"Debbie's recognition with the British Empire Medal is a reflection of her dedication to keeping the most vulnerable in our communities safe. After long police service, much of it concerned with safeguarding vulnerable people, she focused most recently on keeping safe and returning children who go missing, particularly those who are often absent from places where they are in care. Those children know they can trust Debbie, as do fellow professionals, who I know will join me in our great pride in congratulating her on this recognition."

Bridgend Athletic Youth end first half of season as the champions after Bryncoch win

Ath players Ben Owen and Ryan Neagle fighting for possession. Photograph by John Canon.

BRIDGEND Athletic Youth can celebrate Christmas as Ospreys Division C East League Champions.

In a clash of the C East titans, they overcame fellow unbeaten side Bryncoch 19–5 on a rain soaked slippery surface at Newbridge Fields.

The Athletic started brightly, dominating possession and territory in the opening exchanges and took a fifth minute lead through a penalty from outside half Rhys Williams.

This brought an instant response from Bryncoch who, through a mixture of running rugby and driving mauls, forced the Athletic to concede penalties which gave the Neath side a line out five metres from the Athletic line. Despite repelling the drive, Bryncoch moved the ball wide for wing Kien Thomson to race over in the corner, for a 5-3 lead.

The Athletic then went close when wing Dan Osarigie was held wide out just short of the whitewash. Athletic full back Callum Reed gathered the clearance kick 40 metres out and ran strongly into the vistors' 22 where Bryncoch were penalised at the ruck. Williams second penalty restored the Athletic lead at 6-5. Both sides were finding the conditions tricky and often it was the side without the ball that was creating the pressure.

After 25 minutes, Athletic scrum half Josh Tidy moved the ball blind from a ruck on halfway. Centre Tom Reed fed his fellow centre Tomas Florence, who broke a tackle and outpaced the Bryncoch defence to run home from 45 minutes to increase his side's lead to 11–5.

The remaining 10 minutes of the half saw Bryncoch throw everything they had at the Athletic to force their way back into the game. The Athletic back row of flankers Ryan Neagle, Sion Vigus and No 8 Mike Gillet were immense with their tackle count during this period, with the whole 15 Ath players determined to keep their line intact. Heroic defence ensured the Athletic went in at half time with their hard earned 11-5 lead.

The Athletic brought on five substitutes at half time with Harrison Morgan, and Fynn Mordecai joining the pack in place of Morgan Thomas and Mike Gillet and Ethan White going to outside half, Joe Watts into the centre and Rhys Hyde replacing Tom Davies. Callum Reed also moved from full back to scrum half with Rhys Williams going to full back. Shortly after, hooker Ben Owen replaced hooker and captain Jack Obbard and Logan Shearan replaced injured prop John Coates.

However, it was Bryncoch who continued to have the early momentum as all the Athletic changes took time to get into the game. Morgan Bennet was securing good line out possession for the Athletic allowing half backs Reed and White to clear the Athletic lines.

Gradually the Athletic came back into the game and dominated the final quarter. Strong carries from front row forwards Ben Owen and Brandyn Fooks and a more sensible strategy of pick and goes in difficult handling conditions ensured the Athletic were no longer conceding possession through handling errors.

This had the effect of wearing down their opponents. With 10 minutes remaining the Athletic won a five-metre scrum when wing Hyde forced his opposite number to carry the ball back over his own line on the left-hand touchline. Reed and White moved the ball along the line where Florence tied in defenders before offloading to Watts, who threw a long pass to Osarigie, who raced over in the corner to give his side breathing space with a 16–5 lead.

The Athletic continued their stranglehold on the game and were awarded a penalty with the final move of the match, which White landed for a hard fought 19–5 victory and the spoils as undefeated Division C East champions.

New Youth coaches Chris Thomas and Huw Lewis selected 10 of their last season's under-16 side, alongside side five second year and seven third year youth players for this championship decider, which bodes well with the nucleus of 15 available next season. Experienced defence coach Paul Yardley has built a mean defensive outfit, only conceding four tries in the seven league matches. Yardley singled out the back row of Neagle, Vigus and Gillet alongside unsung hero prop Brandyn Fooks for special praise against Bryncoch.

The Athletic are now anticipated to move to the B Division for the remainder of this season.

Isabel's first double – On and Off the Turf with Brian Lee

LLANCARFAN'S Isabel Williams, 22, will have good cause to remember 2019.

On December 16 at far flung Fakenham Racecourse she rode her first ever double under National Hunt Rules when landing the Norfolk Hospice Monopoly Board Game Handicap Hurdle on Olympic Honour (7-2) and the Fakenham 2020 Annual Membership For Christmas Novices' Handicap Chase on *Agent Westy (*9-2).

Three-year-old Olympic Honour won by one-and-a-half lengths from Highway Success, partnered by champion jockey Richard Johnson, and five-year-old Agent Westy came home four-and-a-half lengths in front of Zen Master.

They were Isabel's only two mounts at the meeting and both horses are trained by her father Evan Williams.

Isabel, who made the 245-mile trip to Fakenham in the yard's horsebox, driven by former rider Dai Burchell, said: "That's three wins now from three rides at the track," and added: "I'm just over the moon to have ridden my first double.''

Punters who backed Isabel's winners in a £1 double would have picked up £24.75.

Dinas lose their way as Barry come back to win local derby

THE league fixture list provided a local derby for the festive period (Barry home to Dinas Powys), but this was no Christmas cracker, this was a low quality, error-filled contest.

The victory was claimed by Barry as they scored two tries in the final 10 minutes to earn a win that they craved more than their neighbours from Dinas Powys. The home side played the conditions more effectively and accepted their limitations and kept their tactics simple whereas the 'Villagers' appeared to lack a coherent game plan. This, combined with a series of incoherent substitutions, condemned them to a second defeat of the season againt the 'Bombers'.

The Villagers, playing into the elements in the first half, took an early lead through a penalty from outside half Callum Bricknell and the home side responded through a try from first phase that saw the Dinas defence bamboozled by a straightforward moving of the ball from the base of the scrum to the left wing, who scored in the corner.

Just before half time Bricknell added a second penalty and, despite having had a player sin binned for 10 minutes during this period, the Villagers only trailed by 8–6 at half time. Dinas started the second half powerfully and having enjoyed total domination were awarded a penalty try after a series of offences by the home side. This was to be their final score of the game and as the contest developed, they lost what control and direction they had once had, and there was an inevitability when Barry firstly levelled the score at 13–3 and then scored the winning try as a 15-man rolling maul crashed over in the descending gloom for the winning try .

Unbeaten Rumney are the visitors to the Common on Saturday, January 4 for the first fixture of the new year.

Local derby victory for Pencoed 2nds

PENCOED Second XV visited Llanharan for a league match at the Welfare Ground which was played in good spirit throughout.

It was the first local derby at this level for many a year, and Pencoed took the spoils by 38–5. In an evenly fought first half, Pencoed led 10–0 at the interval through tries by Owain Clarke and Josh Lane.

The highlight of the half, much to the amusement of the considerable Pencoed support, was the subtle skills shown by prop forward Darren Rice whose measured grubber kick and regather had the crowd aghast !

Pencoed started the second half strongly and, following pressure in the home 22, outside half Jack Bevan sent centre Tom Geere powering over at the posts, with Bevan adding the extras.

Bevan was soon again in the picture, breaking from deep and good combined play saw scrum half Andrew Williams dart over from the resultant scrum for the try bonus point, Bevan converting.

To their credit ,'Llan' hit back. Driving play from their pack saw front row forward Jay Fletcher force his way over.

Pencoed returned to the attack, replacement Jack Thompson made a break and pressure in the home 22 saw Bevan pick a good angle at pace to score before adding a fine conversion.

Pencoed left the best until last , Josh Sands leaving the home defence spellbound with a mesmerising run for a stunning score. Bevan converted for a fine 38–5 victory.

For Pencoed, in a good all round squad display half backs Williams and Bevan did well, young 10 Bevan giving a most assured performance. At forward the front row trio of Rice, hooker Joe Daniel and Gareth Thomas gave their side the necessary platform, with the potential of Lucas Galino noticed at second row.The Second XV squad will now break off to enjoy the Christmas festivities !

Latest news from Barry Chess Club

IN the last week of chess in 2019 the Barry Chess Club played two home matches.

Before this night throughout the four divisions of the East Glamorgan Chess Clubs, only three teams, Pentyrch Amateurs, Barry Camelots and Pontypridd Barbarians remained unbeaten and only one team, the Barry Stauntons, had lost every match.

In division 2 the Camelots hosted the Barbarians. Both teams were unbeaten so one of these records had to go. The Camelots were clearly full of the festive spirit as we failed dismally to score anything on the top three boards, with Tom Cooke being our only winner and Ian Abraham picking up a draw.

We therefore lost by 3.5–1.5 but remain in second place in the league table, two points behind the Barbarians with the Titans close on our heels. Fortunately we have a buffer of 2.5 points above the team outside the promotion spots.

In division 4 the Stauntons were at home to the Pentyrch Cardinals. Wins for Ken Curry, Erion Pici and Ieuan Thomas gave us our first victory of the season. This temporarily moved us up from ninth to seventh place in the table although the two teams below us have games in hand.

The Barry Chess Club meets at 7:30 pm most Mondays excluding Bank Holidays at the West End Club, St Nicholas Road, Barry, CF62 6QY. The club is open to players of all standards; whether you are interested in playing competitive chess or just the occasional friendly games.

New players are very welcome to just turn up on the night but it is better to contact one of the club members through the website first so that we can explain what is happening on the night you have in mind and arrange for someone to greet you on your arrival.

Another bonus point win for the Blood and Blacks

A fine performance by the Llantwit pack saw them rack up another bonus point victory as they beat Cefn Coed 38–13 rattling in six tries.

The first quarter was a cagey affair as both teams set at each other at a high tempo, with the visitors playing towards the school end dominant in the early exchanges.

The game plan from Cefn Coed appeared to be to throw everything at the league leaders in an attempt to unsettle them. And with a big heavy pack they were asking plenty of questions, coming close on several occasions to breaking through. But the home side held with the Rhys flankers,David and Hewitt, putting in some big hits. It was the visitors who were first on the score sheet with a penalty kick.

As the game went into the second quarter you could sense that Llantwit were just starting to edge proceedings and whenever they had a good platform, outside half Loz Howley started turning the big visiting pack.

The first try was a good example as a tactical kick by Howley to the Cefn winger was badly returned with the ball bouncing loose and immediately seized upon by the effervescent centre Rhys Balmont, who linked well with lock Shaun Shea to keep the ball alive. Shea, possibly had a chance to stretch his legs but wisely thought of his age instead and tied up the covering tacklers. The ball was quickly recycled out to centre Josh Austin who gave a nicely-weighted pass to Howley who, spotting the defence in tatters, sliced through like a knife through butter to cross for a very entertaining try.

The next try was all about the big boys in the pack who caused Cefn problems all afternoon with such a powerful scrum it could have bump started a tractor. And it proved its worth as a series of scrum penalties in the visitors' 22 left the match official with no option but to award a penalty try before the break and edge the home side ahead.

The second half started well for Llantwit as they extended their lead with wing Evan Holloway crossing out wide after some good long passes by the three-quarters stretched the opposition defence.

Llantwit were now hunting for the bonus point fourth try and it soon came when scrum half Steff Godwin, enjoying playing behind a dominant pack, produced a show and go to race over untouched.

It was not all one-way traffic though as Cefn battled back, scoring two well-taken tries to keep the game honest.

It was then left to the Llantwit centre partnership to have the final say as Josh Austin crossed after a brilliant piece of handling by the back line. He was quickly followed by his partner Balmont who had too much pace as he seized on some turn over ball to cross and seal another fine performance by the Blood and Blacks.

Man of the Match was scrum half Godwin whose crisp delivery was at the heart of most of the Llantwit attacking play. Further mention should go to tight forward Jamie Lewis who had a solid game in the pack.

Llantwit can now enjoy their turkey on top of the league table, but the coaches have already warned there is still a long, long way to go with plenty of tough games still to come, especially with the season so far being decimated by the weather.

Bridgend Athletic Youth march on with a big victory over Nanymoel

BRIDGEND Athletic Youth maintained their unbeaten run in the Ospreys C East league with a resounding victory against a very plucky Nantymoel team at Newbridge Fields.

They top the league with six wins from 6–5 with bonus points and have a remarkable 241–26 points differential,crossing for 38 tries with only three against.

Coming off a slightly lacklustre display the previous week, the coaches had re-iterated to the players about the style of play they want played and the players responded remarkably, scoring nine tries – eight from the backs.

From the first whistle, the Ath dominated a very committed team – the first score coming from a great break by centre Tom Reed, who gave an inside pass to Morgan Bennett who was tackled 20 metres short, a great pick up by Harrison Morgan saw him give a tr-scoring pass to winger Danny Osarigie.

Two minutes later, a set play saw centre Tom Reed charging towards the defence before feeding fellow centre Tom Florence who stepped the full back to cross over under the posts.

Practically from the restart the Ath had a lineout on their 10-metre line. Quick ball off the top saw scrum half Josh Tidy throw a dummy before racing over the line from 60 metres for a fantastic individual try.

Five minutes later, winger Danny Osarigie picked up loose ball inside his own half before racing away to sidestep the full back and score under the posts.

A short while later, following great work by second rows Harrison Morgan and Morgan Thomas, centre Tom Florence flew over under the posts for the bonus point try.Outside Half Rhys Williams, capping a great first half performance, with five out of five conversions for a 35-0 half time lead.

Nantymoel rallied early in the second half to score a driving try through the forwards, the conversion narrowly missed.

This however spurred the Ath on and winger Tom Davies scored an outstanding try. Following great work by forwards and backs resulting in a great pass from outstanding full back Callum Reed to send him flying down the touchline to race away and score under the posts.

Two minutes later an unbelievable run from winger Rhys Hyde, returning after a long layoff from a nasty injury and looking extremely fit and dangerous, saw him set up a ruck 40 metres out. A quick pass from Tom Florence saw him feed Callum Reed who raced away to score under the posts, adding the conversion himself.

Nantymoel then had an attacking lineout five metres from the Ath try line. However, flanker Morgan Bennet stole the lineout deflecting the ball back to Fynn Mordecai who ran around the lineout, smashed through a few defenders before throwing a great inside pass to Danny Osarigie on the 22 which saw him race away to score under the posts for his hat trick try.

From the restart the Ath again attacked and Tom Florence gave a great pass to Fynn Mordecai hitting a great angle to race away and score under the posts, and converting to end the game at 59-5.

Great results at Tae Kwon Do competition

FANTASTIC results once again for team JSTKD at the Welsh Closed Tae Kwon Do Championships held in Newport.

The team comprised, for the girls E Hardwick, N Park, G Waters and D Griffin; for the boys R Grinter, Z Grinter, J Grinter, R Jenkins, F Nadin, M Jones, L Wilson, K Wooler, J Bishop, M Preest, T Skone, H Thomas, I Robinson; and for the men, P Jelf and B Preest.

As usual, the whole team performed to a very high standard throughout in both the patterns and sparring divisions.

Taking the tournament Champion title in their respective sparring categories were Emily Hardwick, Rhys Grinter, Harry Thomas, Zac Grinter and Phil Jelf. Darcy Griffin, following a tough battle, also took the top spot in her final junior competition before moving into the Cadet division.

There were medals too for Isaac Robinson (silver) J Bishop and F Nadin (bronze). As well as continuing to impress in sparring, Zac claimed a silver for patterns.

JSTKD's director and head coach, Joseph Schembri commented: "Every member of the team fought outstandingly and I am delighted that many of them were rewarded with medals. We're now looking forward to continued success at the British Championships later this month."

JSTKD has classes throughout the Vale for all ages and abilities and offers a free taster lesson for new students. Full details at www.jstkd.co.uk.

Flint strikes at Ffos Las

BRIDGEND trainer John Flint had a welcome winner when his ten-year-old Lac Sacre landed the three miles and one furlong handicap chase at Ffos Las on Monday, December 16.

Former steel-worker Flint thinks a lot of this French-bred horse, which was ridden by Ben Jones, whose father Dai Jones is clerk of the course at Ffos Las.

Lac Sacre, a 4-1 chance, won by 12 lengths from Tudor 's Treasure, trained near Chepstow by Robert Stephens.

The opening handicap hurdle went to Debra Hamer's Out Of The Glen, which beat the Evan Williams trained Ring The Moon.

Tim Vaughan's FreeDelivery was a suprise 20-1 winner of the maiden hurdle, coming home three lengths ahead of Debbie Hamer's Jac Brown. FreeDelivery was patrnered by Richard Patrick.

Peterson-super-Ely's Phil Dando almost had a winner when Driftwood Haze, ridden by Ben Jones, was beaten half-a-length in the novices' handicap chase by Sam Drinkwater's Some Can Dance and David Brace's Colorado Doc was beaten by the odds-on Thomas MacDonough in the novices' hurdle event.

15-man scrum gives Barry crucial late try against Dinas

WITH the turkey now curried, it was back to League action for Barry RFC last Saturday as they faced local rivals Dinas Powys at the Reservoir Field.

A good crowd gathered, anticipating a tight encounter after Barry's last gasp win in the reverse fixture earlier in the season and both sides needed a win to put their season back on track. They were not to be disappointed as again this game went down to the wire, with Barry winning the game in the final seconds by 18–13.

Both teams were cautious in the opening minutes with the boot controlling the game as they sparred for an early advantage.

Dinas drew first blood as Barry were caught offside with the penalty kicked for a 3-point lead.

Barry were on the attack from a series of penalties and quick ball from the scrum saw the ball reach Chris Lockyer on the wing with plenty to do. A deft change of pace and direction took him through defenders to cross for a fine individual try, and despite the conversion being missed, Barry had taken the lead at 5–3.

Dinas began to expand their game and tested the Barry defence with some good work by their backs, but Barry held firm.

Barry turned defence into attack from a scrum with a break by Alyn Evans being rewarded with a penalty which Kyle Barross calmly kicked to put them into an 8–3 lead as the clock ran down.

That should have been the half time score but some poor decisions by Barry put the team under pressure, forcing them to concede a penalty which Dinas gratefully took to bring them to within two points as the half ended.

An early penalty to Dinas saw them into the home 22 with Barry having to defend at both lineout and scrums. Futher penalties were conceded close to the line as the referee's patience ran out – finally awarding a penalty try to the visitors and an important 13–8 lead.

The game became scrappy as both teams made errors and chances were limited and even Barry's attempts to get territorial advantage were thwarted by some poor decision making.

They did finally get into the visitors 22 and a blindside move looked likely to produce a score – only for the final pass to go astray.

Having brought on fresh legs in the pack, Barry gained a five-metre lineout. Winning the ball, it somehow found Sam Bowditch who crashed through to cross for the try but, with the conversion missed, the game was level pegging at 13 points each and not long to go.

Still playing for territory, Barry's kicking was inaccurate to say the least and this saw them continually pegged back and having to regroup.

They finally got into the visitors' 22 as Dinas conceded two quick penalties which led to Barry gaining a five-metre scrum.

Having won the ball the Barry drive was being held. They needed some help and it came in the form of the whole back division as they joined the scrum to drive Dinas over their line where Alyn Evans got the touchdown. The conversion was missed but Barry had put themselves ahead by 18–13 with the referee looking at his watch.

Barry held firm in the time left and the joy and relief for both players and supporters was obvious to see, none more so than coach Liam Scott.

As expected, it was a hard-fought contest and a typical local derby but a vital win for Barry.

Things don't get any easier next week as Barry travel to Mountain Ash next Saturday, a side in the top four of the league.

A coach will leave the club at 12.30pm.

The Lottery jackpot increases to £1,100 this week after last week's numbers 06 - 11 - 20 and 24 failed to find a winner.

One ticket matched three numbers to claim £10.

Johnny Clay – the man who made the difference

AT the end of a year when Tiger Woods amazed everyone by coming back to win a major tournament at the age of 43, after it seemed his career was over, the president of Cowbridge Cricket Club, Jeff Bird, looks back at a local man who stepped back on the stage at 50 years old to help Glamorgan win the biggest prize!

Every so often sport throws up an unexpected performance that casts the memory back to the days when the performer was at his/her peak.

Just think of Lester Piggott, Tiger Woods and Sprinter Sacre.

One comeback to rank alongside any was the recall to the Glamorgan colours of 50-year-old Johnny Clay who then proceeded to play a spectacular role in the Welsh county winning two crucial matches and securing the 1948 County Championship.

It was very much a case of Cowbridge winning the Championship for Glamorgan and Wales. Johnny Clay was born in Bonvilston at the end of the 19th century. He went to school at Winchester and by 1923 was representing Glamorgan.

When he was free of first class commitments he played for Cowbridge and in 1925 brought his friends Maurice Turnbull and Cyril Walters to play.

All three would go on to play test cricket. Johnny is recorded as having taken nine wickets in a match twice, against Barry and Pontypridd.

Johnny's career consisted of 373 first class matches and one test match against South Africa in 1935. His career yielded a total of 1,317 wickets at an average of 19.76. These figures tell us that Clay was a very good bowler.

Johnny was called up again against Australia in 1938 but considered himself unlikely to last a full five days so it was to be just the one test match.

Perhaps we can see here the beginnings of an all too common theme of Glamorgan cricketers gaining fewer caps than their talent suggested they should have (Parkhouse, Lewis, Maynard, Morris, James, Watkin) or none at all (Don Shepherd) and in one case even had his cap taken away (Alan Jones).

Amazingly, Johnny as an amateur cricketer held the role of treasurer of Glamorgan between 1933 and 1938 with his friend Turnbull as secretary. One cannot imagine the modern day players being allowed to hold such positions but then Glamorgan were very short of money. The glamorous duo proved themselves adept at fundraising but unfortunately the four matches played at Cowbridge in the 1930s failed financially..

No doubt Johnny would have added to his records had the war not interrupted it but when peace allowed the restart of cricket in 1947, he skippered the side before handing over to Wilf Wooller.

In the run in of the last three matches in 1948 it seemed that two wins would secure the title for Glamorgan. 'Woollers' had the task of making the decision as to who would replace the injured Phil Clift in the side to contest these last matches.

To Wooller it was never a decision that troubled him. If Johnny could be persuaded, he played.

Two victories followed and Wooller was entirely vindicated and by some measure. Bowling like a man half his age and at the very top of his game, Johnny took 19 for 125 over the four innings, both Surrey and Hampshire being obliged to follow on.

Use whichever adjective you feel appropriate to describe the performance, but it must rank as one of the decisive contributions ever made in sport. Put into context, Johnny Clay's destruction of two county XIs in both innings was all happening in arguably the premier non-test match first class competition in the world.

The pressure was on, Glamorgan were challenging seriously for the first time and remember Johnny was 50 years old.

He did not play for Glamorgan again. He contented himself mainly playing for Cowbridge and The South Wales Hunts. He became president of Cowbridge CC and would bring a team of Glamorgan's young professionals to play as his President's XI to the club each year.

Retaining his influence at Glamorgan, he also served as the county club's president. Often of a Saturday, Johnny would watch the game being played that day at Cowbridge and leave a substantial note of the realm for the players to have a drink.

Such generosity left a lasting image of a 'lovely man' with David 'Scoop' Lewis. Another image is, of course, his portrait by Douglas Davies which hangs in the Pavilion.

If you visit Johnny Clay's resting place in St Hilary, a village close to Cowbridge, look for the marble cricket ball resting on the gravestone.. There could not be a more appropriate symbol of a cricketing life.
